

Peter Cat

petercat.co.uk

PETER CAT are the quintessential outsider pop band, bringing the restless formal experimentalism of Scott Walker and Frank Zappa together with a modern indie and synth-pop sensibility. Their live performances are energetic, unpredictable, and engaging, buoyed by vocalist and songwriter Graham Gillespie's Bowie-esque baritone and dry sense of humour.

Peter Cat quickly signed with upstart Scottish indie MoFi Records for the release of their debut LP, 'The Saccharine Underground', in 2020, which was distributed nationwide through Scottish heavyweight label Last Night From Glasgow. EP 'The Magus' followed in early 2022, received heavy rotation on Amazing Radio and support from the BBC's Tom Robinson, Roddy Hart & Rapal shows. When Tom played the title track on his 6Music mixtape, he saved "today's oddest and most unsettling tune 'til last," and praised the track as the work of an "adventurous, leftfield songsmith."

Selected Discography

Peter Cat are equally at home making you laugh, as in songs like 'Melon Dating Simulator!!', a quirky cross-species love story set in a post-apocalyptic future, as they are making you cry - as in 'The Day After The Funeral', an arresting meditation on grief and the impossibility of mourning. Having toured widely across the UK since 2018, the band have built up a devoted audience around the country.

"The Saccharine Underground is a brilliant debut record. It's a majestic record full-stop. Ten minutes ago I was laughing, five minutes ago I was crying...it's pulled together with great panache and sounds quite unlike anything else I can put my finger on right now" - I Said Yeah
